Task 1.1

Response	Mark	Examiner's comment
Hi Ben, Did you hear the club is closing for a month? I'm really disappointed—we'll miss our workouts! I think they should offer online classes or outdoor group sessions during the break. Also, it'd be great if they improve the showers and maybe add more space in the stretching area. Take care, Nico	5	Theresponseisbeyondlevel B1.

Response	Mark	Examiner's comment
Dear Manager, Thank you for your email. Even I understand that the building needs some repairs and new equipment, I was a bit disappointed to hear that the fitness club will be closed for one month. I usually come a few times a week, so it's an important part of my lifestyle. I would like to suggest some improvements. The changing rooms are sometimes too small and not very clean, so maybe they can be repaired. It would be also nice to have more fitness classes in the evenings when most people can come. Thank you for listening to our opinions. I hope to return to club soon. Best regards, Nicolas Tedros.	3	The response is on topic, but the questions are not fully addressed. The register is appropriate. A range of complex structures are used. Vocabulary is sufficient to discuss the topics. Errors in grammar, and word choice do not cause misunderstanding. Some cohesive devices and referencing are used to connect sentences.

Response	Mark	Examiner's comment
Ithink living in a small town is better than living in a big city, even if both have some advantages. In my opinion, small towns are more calm and people can live there with less stress. There is not so much noise and traffic like in big cities, so it's easier to relax and enjoy free time. Also, the air is more clean and the nature is closer, which is good for health. Another reason is that people in small towns usually know each other and are more friendly. There is a stronger feeling of community, and it's easier to make friends. For example, in my town I often meet people I know when I go outside. Of course, big cities offer more job opportunities and better education. You can find more shops, cinemas, and restaurants there. But I think life in a city can be very fast and tired. It's not easy to find a silent place or to have time for yourself. In conclusion, I prefer to living in a small town because the life is easier and more peaceful. I know that some people choose big cities, but for me, small town gives better quality of life.	4	Theresponse is relevant, but the stance is clear. A range of complex structures are used. Vocabulary is sufficient to discuss the topics. Errors in grammar, and some awkward usage of vocabulary do not cause misunderstanding. Clear structure with some use of connectors and logical flow.

Task 1.1

Hi Alex,

Can you believe the library's closing for two weeks for renovations? I'm a bit gutted as I just started a new book series! Honestly, it's inconvenient, but hopefully, the upgrades will be worth it.

Maybe we can try that new coffee shop during that time? Let me know what you think.

Best,

Alex

Task 1.2

Dear Head Librarian,

Thank you for informing us about the upcoming renovations. While I understand the necessity for upgrades to enhance the member experience, I must admit to feeling a degree of disappointment regarding the two-week closure. As an avid reader, the library is a vital resource for me, and its temporary absence will present a challenge, particularly as I was looking forward to continuing with some current reading material.

However, I do appreciate the proactive approach to seeking member input for future programs and services. Upon reopening, I would strongly suggest considering initiatives such as expanding the digital collection, perhaps offering more e-books and audiobooks. Additionally, introducing workshops on digital literacy or author talks could be highly beneficial and popular among members. Ensuring clear communication about the reopening date and any new offerings will also be key to a smooth transition.

Thank you again for your commitment to improving the library.

Sincerely,

Alex

Part-2:

That's a really pertinent question. Having experienced both, I can see distinct advantages and disadvantages to online learning compared to traditional classroom settings.

On the plus side, flexibility is arguably the biggest benefit of online learning. You can often access materials and lectures at any time that suits your schedule, which is invaluable for those juggling work or other commitments. For instance, I can rewatch a tricky grammar explanation as many times as needed, something impossible in a live class. Furthermore, the sheer volume of resources available online, from interactive exercises to vast digital libraries, is often far greater than what a single classroom can offer.

However, traditional classrooms offer a unique social dynamic that online learning struggles to replicate. The face-to-face interaction with both the teacher and peers fosters immediate feedback and spontaneous discussion, which can significantly boost understanding and motivation. I've found that in-person group activities really help solidify vocabulary and speaking practice in a way that virtual breakout rooms sometimes don't quite capture. The lack of direct, immediate human connection can sometimes lead to feelings of isolation for online learners.

Ultimately, I believe the ideal scenario might involve a blended approach, leveraging the convenience of online resources with the interactive benefits of in-person instruction.

Dear Jack,

I just received the flyer about the new community park, and I'm thrilled! It's a fantastic opportunity for our neighborhood to have a green space for relaxation and socializing. I hope to see features like walking trails, picnic areas, and perhaps a small playground for children. Let's discuss this further!

Task 1.2

Dear Local Council Planning Department,

I am writing to express my excitement regarding the plans for a new community park in our neighborhood. This initiative is a wonderful opportunity to enhance our local environment and foster community spirit.

To make the park truly beneficial for everyone, I suggest incorporating a variety of features. Firstly, walking and cycling paths would encourage outdoor activities and promote a healthy lifestyle. Additionally, having picnic areas with tables and benches would provide families a space to gather and enjoy meals together. A children's playground would also be essential, as it would offer a safe area for kids to play and socialize.

Lastly, including native plants and trees would not only beautify the park but also support local wildlife. Thank you for considering my suggestions, and I look forward to seeing this project come to life.

Part-2

Technology is a highly debated topic, and I am of the opinion that its impact on our lives can be seen as both positive and negative.

On one hand, technology has significantly improved our quality of life. For example, medical advancements have led to better healthcare outcomes, with telemedicine allowing patients to consult doctors remotely, especially during the pandemic. This accessibility is crucial for those in remote areas who might otherwise struggle to receive medical attention.

Moreover, technology has transformed communication. Social media platforms enable us to stay connected with friends and family across the globe, fostering relationships that might have otherwise faded. Additionally, online learning has made education more accessible, allowing people from various backgrounds to acquire knowledge and skills that were previously out of reach.

However, there are downsides. The pervasive use of smartphones and social media can lead to social isolation and mental health issues, particularly among younger generations. Furthermore, the rapid pace of technological change can result in job displacement, as automation replaces traditional roles.

Ultimately, while technology has undoubtedly improved many aspects of our lives, it also poses challenges that we must navigate carefully. Balancing these benefits and drawbacks is essential for a better future.

Task-1.1

Hi Jack,

Did you see the HR message about welcoming new staff? They're planning something to help new colleagues settle in. I think it's a great initiative! I hope they create a really friendly and supportive environment from day one, maybe with a buddy system or a team lunch.

Best,

Alex

Task-1.2

Dear HR Department,

I am writing in response to your recent message regarding the initiative to enhance the welcome experience for new colleagues. I wholeheartedly support this plan; fostering a positive and inclusive onboarding process is crucial for employee retention and overall team morale.

I believe several elements could greatly contribute to making new staff feel comfortable and integrated quickly. Firstly, implementing a "buddy system" where an experienced employee is assigned to guide a new starter for their first few weeks could be invaluable. This buddy could answer informal questions, introduce them to others, and help them navigate company culture.

Secondly, a designated welcome lunch or coffee break within the first week, involving their immediate team, would provide a relaxed opportunity for introductions. Finally, ensuring that new employees have all necessary resources and access before their first day, and a clear introductory schedule for their first week, would significantly reduce initial stress and allow them to focus on learning their role and connecting with colleagues.

Thank you for prioritizing this important aspect of our workplace.

Part-2

The idea of celebrities as role models for young people is a bit of a mixed bag, in my opinion. While they certainly have influence, it’s not always for the better.

On one hand, some celebrities are genuinely positive influences. Many use their fame to support important causes, like raising awareness for environmental issues or promoting educational charities. For example, an actor who speaks out about the importance of literacy can inspire young people to value reading. Similarly, athletes who demonstrate dedication and discipline in their sport can motivate others to pursue their goals with hard work and commitment. These individuals often showcase admirable qualities like perseverance and resilience.

However, there are significant downsides too. The lifestyles portrayed by many celebrities can be extremely extravagant and sometimes promote unhealthy values, such as excessive consumerism or superficial appearances. This can create unrealistic expectations for young fans, leading to disappointment or a focus on material possessions. Furthermore, some celebrities engage in controversial behaviour or scandals that are widely publicised, providing a poor example. Young people, especially, might not always have the maturity to critically assess the information they receive and could be negatively influenced by these aspects.

Therefore, while celebrities can be role models, it's important for young people to be discerning and look beyond the glamour. They should focus on the actions and values that truly matter.

1. Influence - Ta'sir
2. Genuinely - Chinakamiga, haqiqatdan
3. Support - Qo'llab-quvvatlamoq
4. Dedication - Bag'ishlanish, sadoqat
5. Discipline - Intizom
6. Pursue - Intilmoq, ergashmoq

Task-1.1

Hey Jack,

Did you see the Head teacher’s message about improving the school? I think it's a great idea! I'm really hoping we can get better resources for the classrooms and maybe some more quiet spaces for students to relax. It would be great to see further modernizations. Let's chat about it later!

Best,

Alex

Task-1.2

Dear Head teacher,

Thank you for your message regarding the initiative to enhance our school environment. I fully support this plan and believe it's an excellent opportunity to make our school an even more positive and effective place for both students and staff.

To make the school setting more supportive for students, I suggest we consider creating designated quiet zones or common areas where they can study independently or de-stress during breaks. Additionally, investing in more interactive learning tools and perhaps refreshing some of the older classroom furniture could significantly boost student engagement and comfort.

For us as educators, clearer communication channels and perhaps a dedicated staff lounge space for collaboration and relaxation would be highly beneficial. Streamlining administrative tasks, possibly through better digital tools, would also allow us to focus more on teaching. I'm eager to contribute further ideas.

Sincerely,

Alex

Social media has become an integral part of young people's lives, and I perceive that its impacts are both positive and negative. On the one hand, social media platforms provide young users with opportunities for connection and communication. They can easily maintain friendships, share experiences, and engage with diverse communities around the world. For instance, platforms like Instagram and TikTok allow users to express their creativity and showcase their talents, fostering a sense of belonging and self- identity.

However, the negative effects of social media cannot be overlooked. One significant concern is the impact on mental health. Young users often face pressure to present a perfect image online, leading to feelings of inadequacy and anxiety. Studies have shown that excessive use of social media can contribute to issues such as depression and low self-esteem. Additionally, exposure to cyber bullying is a serious problem that can have lasting emotional consequences.

Ultimately, while social media offers valuable opportunities for connection and creativity, it also poses risks to mental health and well-being. It is essential for young users to navigate these platforms mindfully, balancing their online interactions with real-world experiences to mitigate potential negative impacts.

In my opinion, both big cities and small towns have their unique advantages, but I believe that living in a big city offers more opportunities for personal and professional growth.

Firstly, big cities are often hubs of diversity and culture. They provide access to a wide range of cultural experiences, including museums, theaters, and international cuisine. For example, in cities like New York or London, one can experience art from various cultures and attend performances from around the world. This cultural richness can greatly enhance one's understanding of different perspectives.

Secondly, big cities typically offer better job prospects. With numerous industries and companies located in urban areas, individuals have a greater chance of finding employment in their desired field. For instance, someone interested in technology may find better opportunities in a city like San Francisco, which is known for its thriving tech scene.

However, it's important to acknowledge the downsides of city living, such as higher costs of living and noise. In contrast, small towns often provide a sense of community and tranquility that can be appealing.

Ultimately, the choice depends on personal preferences and priorities, but for those seeking growth and adventure, big cities are often the better option.

Part-2

Air pollution is a pressing issue that affects many cities around the world. I ‘m of the opinion that there’re several key reasons for this problem. Let’s look through some of them!

Firstly, one of the main contributors to air pollution is industrial activity. Factories release a significant amount of harmful gases and particulate matter into the atmosphere during production processes. For example, in countries with heavy manufacturing industries, such as China and India, air quality often suffers due to emissions from factories.

Secondly, transportation is another major factor. Vehicles, especially those that run on fossil fuels like petrol and diesel, emit carbon monoxide, nitrogen oxides, and other pollutants. In urban areas with high traffic congestion, these emissions can lead to smog and respiratory issues for residents. For instance, cities like Los Angeles and Mexico City frequently experience poor air quality due to the number of cars on the road.

Lastly, household activities also contribute to air pollution. Burning wood or coal for heating and cooking releases smoke and toxic substances. In many developing countries, this practice is common and poses health risks to families.

Ultimately, industrial activities, transportation, and household practices are significant reasons for air pollution, and in my opinion, addressing these issues is crucial for improving air quality and public health.

1. Pollution - ifloslanish

2. Industry - sanoat

3. Emissions - chiqindilar

4. Vehicles - transport vositalari

6. Fossil fuels - qazilma yoqilg‘ilar

7. Heavy manufacturing industries - og‘ir ishlab chiqarish sanoatlari

8. Urban areas - shahar hududlari

9. Burning wood or coal - yog‘och yoki ko‘mir yoqish

10. Poor air quality - yomon havo sifati

Task 1.2

Dear HR Manager, Thank you for your letter regarding the new work-from-home policy. I appreciate the company's efforts to adapt to modern working conditions. I believe this plan can bring significant benefits for both employees and the organization. Working from home can enhance productivity, as many workers find it easier to concentrate in a familiar environment without the distractions of the office. Moreover, allowing employees to work remotely can lead to improved job satisfaction and morale, which ultimately benefits the company. However, I would like to express my interest in being included in this initiative. I believe that with the right tools and communication, I could perform my duties effectively from home.

Part-2

This is a really serious and complex question: why is the crime rate among teenagers seemingly increasing? There isn't one simple answer, but I think several factors are contributing.

One major reason is the influence of social media and technology. Many young people are exposed to violent content online, which can normalize aggressive behavior. For example, some studies suggest that teenagers who play violent video games may become desensitized to violence and more likely to act out in real life.

Furthermore, socio-economic factors play a big role. Poverty, unstable home environments, and lack of parental supervision can create a breeding ground for crime. When families are struggling, or when children don't have consistent guidance, they are more vulnerable. For instance, a teenager from a disadvantaged background might resort to theft out of desperation or a lack of other options.

Finally, some argue that mental health issues are also a contributing factor. Untreated depression, anxiety, or other challenges can manifest in destructive ways, including anti-social behaviour.

In short, it's a multifaceted problem that needs a comprehensive approach, focusing on support, education, and opportunity.

1. Crime rate among teenagers - O'smirlar orasidagi jinoyat darajasi
2. Social media and technology - Ijtimoiy tarmoqlar va texnologiya
3. Exposed to violent content - Zo'ravon kontentga duchor bo'lish
4. Aggressive behavior - Zo'ravon harakat
5. Socio-economic factors - Ijtimoiy-iqtisodiy omillar
6. Lack of parental supervision - Ota-onalarning nazorat etishining yo'qligi
7. Breeding ground for crime - Jinoyat uchun sharoit yaratish
8. Struggling families - Qiyin ahvolda bo'lgan oilalar
9. Mental health issues - Ruhiy salomatlik muammolari
10. Comprehensive approach - Keng qamrovli yondashuv

Part-2

The question of whether students should be allowed to use smartphones at school is a really hot topic with strong arguments on both sides. Personally, I lean towards allowing them, but with clear guidelines and educational integration.

On one hand, smartphones are undeniable distractions. When a student's phone is buzzing with notifications during a lesson, it’s incredibly hard for them to focus on the teacher or the material. This can lead to decreased learning and poorer academic performance. We've all seen examples of students scrolling through social media or playing games instead of paying attention. This constant temptation can really hinder the educational environment.

However, smartphones are also incredibly powerful tools that can actually enhance learning. Many educational apps, online research tools, and even digital textbooks are accessible via smartphones. For instance, a student could use their phone to quickly look up an unfamiliar word, access a relevant historical document for a project, or even use a language learning app during breaks. Banning them entirely removes these educational opportunities.

Therefore, instead of an outright ban, I believe schools should focus on teaching responsible digital citizenship and integrating smartphones as learning aids. Setting clear rules, like phones being put away during direct instruction but allowed for specific research tasks, could be a good compromise.

1. Hot topic - Qizg'in mavzu

2. Strong arguments - Kuchli dalillar / asoslar

3. Lean towards - Tomonida bo'lmoq / moyil bo'lmoq

4. Clear guidelines - Aniqlik kiritilgan qoidalar / aniq yo'riqnomalar

5. Undeniable distractions - Inkorsiz chalg'ituvchi omillar

6. Poorer academic performance - Yomonroq o'quv natijalari / akademik samaradorlikning pasayishi

7. Enhance learning - O'rganishni yaxshilash / o'quv jarayonini kuchaytirish

8. Responsible digital citizenship - Mas'uliyatli raqamli fuqarolik

Part-2

This is a classic debate: should kids dive into a foreign language right when they start primary school, or is it better to wait until they reach secondary school? Both approaches have their merits, but I personally believe that starting early offers significant advantages.

The primary benefit of early language learning is that young children's brains are incredibly receptive to new sounds and structures. They are less inhibited and more willing to experiment with pronunciation, which is crucial for developing fluency. Think about how easily toddlers pick up their native language – this plasticity is a window of opportunity. For example, children who start learning a language like Spanish in primary school often develop a more natural accent and a deeper intuitive grasp of grammar compared to those who start years later.

However, I do acknowledge that starting too early without proper resources or engaging methods can be difficult. The key is to make early language learning fun and immersive, not a chore. This could involve songs, games, and interactive activities.

For that reason, if primary schools can provide this kind of engaging environment, then starting early truly sets children up for greater success in the long run, providing them with a valuable skill for life.

1. Foreign language - Chet tili

2. Start early - Erta boshlamoq

3. Significant advantages - Kattakon afzalliklar / sezilarli ustunliklar

4. Language learning - Til o'rganish

Task 1.1

Dear Jack,

I hope you’re doing well! I just received an email from our internet provider's manager regarding the connection issues we’ve been facing. I feel relieved that they acknowledged the problem, but I think they need to improve their customer support and provide regular updates. It would really help us!

Best,

Alex

Task 1.2

Dear Manager, Thank you for your email and for acknowledging the ongoing internet connection issues in our area. While I appreciate the apology and your commitment to fixing them soon, I must admit I'm quite frustrated. For weeks now, my connection has been unreliable, frequently dropping during important video calls for work and causing significant disruption.

I believe the company should consider a few improvements. Firstly, enhancing the infrastructure would be crucial to ensure a stable connection for all customers. Additionally, providing timely updates about the status of repairs would help alleviate frustration and keep us informed. Lastly, improving customer support services would make it easier for users to report issues and receive assistance. Thank you for considering my suggestions. I look forward to seeing positive changes soon.

Sincerely,

Alex

Part-2

This is a really interesting question for our discussion board: should schools prioritize practical life skills like managing money and cooking, or stick to the more traditional subjects like math and science? It's a tough balancing act, and I think a compromise is definitely needed.

On one hand, subjects like math and science are fundamental. They build critical thinking, problem-solving abilities, and provide the foundational knowledge for many careers. Understanding physics or algebra isn't just about passing tests; it's about developing a logical mindset that's useful in many aspects of life. For instance, a grasp of scientific principles helps us understand the world around us, from weather patterns to how our bodies work.

However, we can't ignore the importance of practical life skills. Many young adults leave school feeling unprepared for the realities of independent living. Knowing how to budget, manage personal finances, and prepare nutritious meals are essential skills that directly impact daily well-being and future success. I've seen friends struggle with debt because they never learned to budget, and others who rely heavily on convenience food because cooking seemed too daunting.

Therefore, I believe schools should strive for a curriculum that integrates both. Balancing both traditional and practical subjects will ultimately benefit students in their future endeavors.
